Fur is Flying at AWA: Dogs and Cats Get Caught up in Political Scandal!

October 25, 2016

Voorhees, NJ: At the Animal Welfare Association (AWA), a tense battle is underway between the DemoCATS and the RePUPlicans as each party vies to claim the title of “Commander in Chief” of area homes. At this point the DemoCATS and RePUPlicans are neck-and-neck, but one party will emerge as victorious and have more party members adopted between November 1 and Election Day on November 8. They are part of AWA’s “Race to the Right House” Adoption Promotion.

Each adoption is a vote cast for the species that will claim the title of “most popular pet” and be crowned PET PRESIDENT of the United States of PetMerica.

“The campaign is getting dirty,” shares Nanci Keklak, Shelter Services Manager. “Kitty litter is flying over numerous scandals.”

“This area is in for a whirlwind month as each party meows and barks their way to the top,” says Stacie DaBolt, Director of Operations. “We know the stats: 80% of households in New Jersey own a cat or a dog. And we know that currently cats reign supreme. But dogs are a man’s best friend so they are solid contenders!”

The “Race to the Right House” kicks off November 1, 2016. Follow AWA on Facebook to read the latest polls and watch the DemoCATS and the RePUPlicans duke it out. “Petitics” (four-legged politics) will never be the same- it’s a dog eat dog world”, says Nanci Keklak.
