It's Raining Cats at AWA

Summer adoption promotion aims to save the lives of 200 cats and kittens

June 1, 2015

Voorhees, NJ: Animal Welfare Association (AWA) announces their adoption promotion called "Raining Cats", starting June 1 and running through July 31. The goal is to save the lives of 200 cats and kittens during the summer months when the shelter is flooded with homeless felines.

"It's kitten season, which means that we see a big increase in the amount of homeless kittens coming through our doors. It also means that adult cats can be overshadowed by their younger counterparts, and they might sit in the shelter for a longer period of time," said Maya Richmond, Executive Director. "With our Raining Cats adoption promotion, we offer reduced adoption fees at $25 for adult cats over 6 months and $50 for kittens 6 months and younger as incentives for adopters."

Raining Cats is just one of AWA's innovative adoption promotions designed to help homeless animals when they need it the most. The goal in June and July is 200 cats and kittens adopted into loving homes. For more information, please visit <https://awanj.org/raining-cats>
